

NOW ABOUT that telegraph item in yesterday's paper where it says a pretty British actress is going to play the role of Lady Godiva in her famous ride every year at Coventry, England, on June 23 — I've news for you.

That original ride of Lady Godiva never came off.

Sure, there was a real person by the name of Lady Godiva. But she never rode naked down the streets of Coventry in the year 1043 — because in the year 1043 there wasn't any town of Coventry.

The encyclopedia tells me there was only a convent named Coventry. The building had been burned by an invader back in 1016, and Lady Godiva, a countess of great wealth, stripped herself of much of her money — but none of her clothes — in order to rebuild it.

Now the classic story of Lady Godiva wasn't dreamed up until 1154, a century later. You know how the story goes —

Special tolls had been slapped on the citizens of Coventry, and Lady Godiva in the nude rode a white horse down the street as a protest to win relief for fellow townsmen.

Her fellow townsmen, being gentlemen, swore that no one would look. But one in the crowd was no gentleman — and that's how come we have the term "Peeping Tom" (this garbageman wasn't added to the original story until 300 years after the supposed date of the ride).

This is what the encyclopedia tells me.

But I am not amused.

Sometimes I feel we ought to take time out and burn encyclopedias.

Negroes Sue for Equal Facilities

El Dorado, 1 March 30 — (AP) — A group of Negro property owners have filed litigation in federal court here charging that their children are not getting educational opportunities equal to those furnished white children.

The lawsuit, submitted by residents of the Parker Chapel community of Union county named members of the board of school district No. 35, and Horace Williamson, county school supervisors as defendants.

The petition alleges that schools and facilities for Negro children of the community are inferior to those provided white children. This, the Negroes say, is a denial of their rights under the United States constitution. They also charged that schooling is not available to Negroes beyond the 10th grade.

Federal Judge John E. Miller has set the trial of the case for next month.

Bearden, Four Others Quizzed by Prosecutor

In a regular session of the Hempstead county grand jury here yesterday Prosecuting Attorney G. W. Lookadoo of Arkadelphia took cognizance of a letter-to-the-editor published in The Star Wednesday, March 28, in which J. E. Bearden, a former sheriff, charged that gambling, liquor sales and bookie joints existed openly in Hope.

Deputy Prosecutor Royce Waisenberger joined Mr. Lookadoo in the grand jury session.

Mr. Lookadoo subpoenaed Mr. Bearden for questioning in regard to the charges. Questioned at length Mr. Bearden reaffirmed his charges and named several persons he said knew of the situation.

Subpoenas were issued for all persons named by Mr. Bearden and four were questioned. The others were not available.

Denying knowledge of gambling, liquor sales and horse-race betting were Tom Wardlaw, R. D. Franklin, Archie Chambliss, and a negro, Calvin Douglas, all Hope residents.

Several other witnesses are scheduled to be questioned. As a result of yesterday's testimony no indictments have been returned. Other cases scheduled for the April circuit court term were investigated and information will be filed, probably Monday, the opening day of Hempstead circuit court.

Bearden's letter compared Hope to Hot Springs and Malvern, both cities recently involved in vice cleanup campaigns. He charged that liquor is being delivered openly in "dry" Hope, that bookies are operating as well as dice games. He said everyone seems to know about it but nothing is being done.

Soldier Faced With Double Slaying Charge

Riverside, Calif., March 30 — (AP) — Double murder charges, plus five other felony counts, faced Air Force Sgt. Lawrence S. Walker today as steps were taken both against him and in his possible defense.

The 20-year-old Negro from Newark N. J., was arraigned on charges of murdering Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cook, both 18, on the desert and hustled back to his cell yesterday. Fearing a possible suicide attempt, officers removed Walker's belt and shoe laces.

With Friday, April 13, set for preliminary hearing, Walker's fiancée, Charlene Simpson, said she had retained Attorney Sam Houston Allen to defend him. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People had a representative at the arraignment. Two association lawyers are scheduled to confer with Allen and Walker today.

A group of Walker's friends began raising a defense fund for the sergeant, described by his commanding officer at March Air Force base as "one of the nicest boys in the outfit."

Sheriff's Dep. W. W. Walrath said that scrapings from Walker's fingernails contained blood. They were being subjected to tests to see if they checked with the blood types of either Cook or his pretty wife. Walker is also accused of kidnapping and attempting to rape Mrs. Cook.

Strike Halts Publication at Pine Bluff

Pine Bluff, March 30 — (AP) — The Pine Bluff Commercial did not publish yesterday as a result of a work stoppage involving 11 union pressmen.

E. W. Freeman Jr., president of the Commercial Printing company, said the pressmen left their jobs without notice.

Earl Small, president of the pressmen's Local No. 438, said the union voted officially to strike at a meeting last night.

He said picket lines were to be established today.

John Aeschliman, Memphis, representative for the International Printing Pressmen and assistants of North America (AFL) agreed that the men had left their jobs. But he said it was after a non-union pressman had been employed over his protests.

He said that during negotiations for a new contract Freeman had insisted on additional pressmen were needed. Freeman's plant publishes the Commercial afternoon and Sunday morning and operates a job shop. Both newspaper and job pressmen were involved in yesterday's walkout. The contract expired March 2.

The stoppage disclosed that the union has filed with the national labor relations board charges of unfair labor practices against the printing company. Aeschliman said the charges alleged refusal to bargain in good faith.

Only point involved in the negotiations which was announced — this by Aeschliman — was the union was seeking an approximate $4-per week increase over the present scale of $71.20 for a 40-hour week.

Freeman said other union employees of the plant worked regular schedules. Aeschliman said he was ready to talk to management representatives at any time.

Damage at Mill Not So Great

Crossett, March 30 — (AP) — Damage inflicted on the Crossett paper mill here by a bolt of lightning may not be as severe as first feared. First reports were that the plant probably would be closed six weeks or longer.

Late yesterday, however, Peter F. Watzek, president of the affiliated Crossett companies, said what partly as a result of generous outside assistance, it was hoped production could be restored within week.

He estimated "roughly" that production loss, property damage and loss of wages would total around $475, if the plant is operating again that soon.

The bolt struck during a storm Wednesday. It hit a wire leading to the electric generating plant. A huge turbine was damaged.

The Chase Bag company, which adjoins the Crossett company, was closed temporarily. Several hundred persons were idled temporarily in the two plants.

Agricultural Development Is Subject of Meet Here of Farm Agencies From 16 Counties

Development of an agricultural resources conservation program as a result of reorganization of soil conservation activities of the department of agriculture is being discussed at a meeting of representatives of agricultural agencies from 16 counties here today.

The meeting is being held at the Hempstead county courthouse with approximately 150 persons in attendance. J. L. Wright, chairman of the state committee of the production & marketing administration, is presiding over the session.

In addition to discussing the consolidated conservation program, the group also discussed reorganization of agricultural agencies and organizations for agricultural mobilization purposes.

The meeting is one of four such sessions held over the state. The action is the result of two memoranda issued by Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan.

In describing the reorganization of conservation activities, Mr. Wright said it was an effort to improve the quality as well as increase the quantity of conservation work being carried out through various programs. He recalled a study of the department of agriculture made by a committee headed by Milton S. Eisenhower in which certain recommendations were made for reorganization of activities. It also described work of the "task force" of the Hoover commission to reorganize the department.

The reorganization, Mr. Wright said, does not change any of the basic laws under which the various agencies operate and all of the actions were taken in line with present authority vested in the secretary.

The changes, he said, are expected to result in increased efficiency of the agencies as well as providing better services to farmers. Principal change will be consolidation, as soon as possible, of housing facilities of the agencies operating in the various counties. This consolidation of office space also applies to state offices at Little Rock.

E. E. Jacobs, administrator's field man of the PMA, stated that hereafter there would be one conservation program with one common objective, that of doing more and better conservation. All agencies he said would work with one common objective within the framework of their own responsibilities and organization.

Short talks in support of the consolidated program were made by Hollis Williams, state conservationist of the soil conservation service; Virgil Highfill, state director of the farmers' home administration; Lloyd Dhanau, associate director of the extension service; Dr. R. P. Bartholomew, associate director of the experiment stations; M. R. Dank, acting forester of the Ouachita national forest; Bryan Jessup, Ralph Kuepelt, and Jim Keith of the state PMA committee.

In his talk Mr. Williams read a memorandum from Dr. Hugh Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service, in which he described the action as a challenge and an opportunity for the agencies to work as a team toward reaching the basic soil conservation objectives.

Mr. Keith said that charges had been made that there is overlapping of services of agencies but he thought of it as an opportunity to close the gaps between the services of the agencies.

In discussions of the coordination program it was brought out that in counties policies and programs will be decided jointly by the PMA committees and local soil conservation technicians, working with governing bodies of soil conservation districts. The county agent and FHA supervisor will be invited to participate. The PMA committee

American Guns Stall Big Red Counter Attack

Tokyo, March 30 — (AP) — American big guns today stalled the Chinese Red counterthrust in two weeks along the western Korean battlefield.

Doughboys spotted the Chinese moving along a mountain north of Uijongbu U. N. artillery pounded the mountain and pushed the Reds still had not pushed through the curtain of fire.

Bitter, close-range fighting flared all day throughout the area. The Americans won a commanding hill with a hand-grenade attack that rocked the Reds back on their heels.

The jury of Communist attacks forced Allied troops to give ground at several points along the front just south of the Red Korean border.

The Reds have moved 50 fresh troops into the front. Lines of vehicles rushed Communist troops and supplies toward the front.

Sees Letdown by Public on Mobilization

Washington, March 30—(AP)—Senator Ives (R-N.Y.) said today Russia will benefit from what he described as "a decided let-down" in public support of the defense mobilization program.

But National Production Administrator Manly Fleischmann says if Russia hopes to wage a successful war against the United States she will have to strike the car.

And Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson has told a congressional committee a rearmament program now getting into full swing will make this nation "very strong" by the end of 1931.

Wilson and Fleischmann expressed their views on the situation in testifying March 7 before the house appropriations committee. They were backing up their agencies' requests for "operating funds." The committee made the testimony public today.

In testifying Wednesday before the senate appropriations committee, Wilson said while the production program was progressing well he was not "quite as optimistic about our stabilization effort."

Ives referred to this today in telling a reporter that the turn of events in Korea is making it more difficult to sell the American people on need for continued effort and sacrifice.

"The situation regarding public support of controls and consumer goods restrictions probably is going to get worse if things continue to look up in Korea," Ives said.

Wilson told the house committee completion of a three-year $150,000,000 rearmament program will put the U.S. in shape to fight an all-out war.

Fleischmann said the U.S. will be ready in one more year and in two more years Russia wouldn't stand a chance.

Wilson estimated that when the production program gets really rolling next year, the nation will have an overall output of $325,000,000,000, of which $50,000,000,000 will represent guns and other war materials.

Back Stabbing Is Charged by Bonds of AEA

Little Rock, March 30—(AP)—State Education Commissioner A. B. Bonds lashed out at "back stabbing" in the school ranks.

T. M. Stinnett, former official in the state education department, warned against any lowering of teacher professional standards because of the national emergency.

These were the highlights of yesterday's opening session of the Arkansas Education Association's 82nd annual convention. The meeting, the annual gathering of Arkansas school teachers, was to end today.

Bonds' outspoken remarks were made at a sectional meeting of county school supervisors.

Stinnett, now associate secretary of the commission on teacher education and professional standards, National Education association, addressed the full convention last night.

Bonds declared that underhand strife involving some members of the teaching profession itself was a major factor in the 1941 general assembly. Many schools throughout the state are being forced to close because, school forces say, the legislature didn't take steps to solve a current financial crisis. And an unsuccessful attempt was made to abolish the position of county supervisors—the men whom Bonds addressed.

"We often had to turn from the eight in front of us to fight those who were stabbing us in the back," said Bonds.

He declared "some superintendents" had taken part in the campaign against the supervisors and that some "individual teachers and individual superintendents" carried tales against the supervisors to legislators "who had the advantage of a podium to spout their poison."

Bonds, who's a close personal and political associate of Governor McMath, predicted there'd be a special legislative session on school problems beginning about April 9.

(The convention earlier yesterday had added its voice to the chorus demanding a special session. McMath has said he'll call one only if assured beforehand of a definite taxation program for the schools.)

Bonds recommended that the supervisors "ask for a full program." He added it would take Arkansas schools 10 to 15 years to recover if needs are not met.

Stinnett said he was opposed to issuance of emergency teacher certificates to persons not meeting the customary requirements. He predicted pressure would be placed on the state board of education to authorize such certificates in considerable numbers if regular teachers quit to go to other states or to go into defense industries. He added:

"Lowering standards never solves the shortage of good teachers. Teacher can rise on higher than the standards of preparation we enforce."

The association nominated without opposition Rep. R. Allen Lynsh, Poinsett county school superintendent, for the AEA presidency.

He would succeed Miss Ocie Bivins of Hartman.

R. B. Brawner, North Little Rock, superintendent, was nominated for the vice presidency. Mrs. Robbelle Webb of Marmaduke and Mrs. Nannie May Roney of Pine Bluff were nominated for recording secretary.

Truman Silent for Plans in 1952

Washington, March 30—(AP)—President Truman's announcement that he has decided what he is going to do in 1952 left lawmakers disagreeing today on whether he will run again.

Mr. Truman told a White House news conference yesterday he has made a decision but is keeping it to himself until he is ready to let the secret out.

The way he said it and the firmness with which he indicated the decision had been made, led some influential Democratic politicians to believe that, as of now, the President won't be a candidate for reelection next year.

Republicans in congress seemed generally to think that they have Mr. Truman's political goose cooked. Only a few of them believed he will run again.

However, Senator Murray (D-Mont) told a reporter "These daily attacks on the President are likely to boomerang like they did in 1948."

"The people of the country don't like to see a man persecuted," he said. "Harry Truman may or may not make mistakes in judgment."

$40,000 for the subscription campaign.

The deficit was revealed yesterday by Donald T. Sheldon, school board president, after a state audit of school teachers, who were to be paid today, won't get their salaries until the deficit is eliminated.

Schools, already closed for the Arkansas Education association convention at Little Rock, won't reopen until late next week, it was said.

Last week the board cut out four jobs. Superintendent Howard B. Bates, resigned immediately.

Ladylike, pretty pumps are right with 1931 spring fashions. The flat beige linen pump (upper left) has black patent heel and binding. A purple calf pump (lower left) has narrow self strips across a V throat. The strips terminate in small, round jet buttons. A gray patent pump (center) with pointed toe and squared-off heel is worn with Anne Fogarty's gray flannel sheath and matching coat, Sally Victor's straw bonnet with velvet ribbons. Dressy pump (upper right) is beige silk shantung with white embroidery. Silt pump (lower right) is navy blue calf with medium heel and perforated vamp.

but he is honest and sincere and is trying to serve his country the best he can."

Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) said he doesn't think Mr. Truman will run. He discounted a prediction by Undersecretary of Labor Michael J. Galvin in Lancaster, Ohio, last night that Mr. Truman will win reelection next year by 58 per cent of the popular vote.

"God pity the American people if that happens," Bricker said.

The Galvin forecast, contained in a speech draft circulated by the Democratic national committee, had no advance sanction from the White House, Mr. Truman said. He said it was a nice prediction but he couldn't comment on it, because he hadn't seen it.

When reporters asked about his plans, the President said that I know what I am going to do and in due time I'll tell you about it.

There wasn't any rush about it, Mr. Truman said, because the national nominating conventions don't meet until June or July of next year.

He added that the President will have something to say about the Democratic convention just as he did last time.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married for three years and in all that time every holiday has been spent with my husband's family. Not once has my husband offered to take me to be with them. If my in-laws were pleasant hosts it wouldn't be quite so hard, but the occasion is dreary beyond description. As soon as we arrive my husband settles himself down to read the paper while his mother takes me off to some other part of the house and spends her time putting me through a questionnaire about how much my dress cost, and what did I pay for my shoes, etc. She also asks me personal questions about matters that I cannot discuss with anyone and is offended when I refuse to answer. Can you suggest some nice way for me to get out of such predicaments?

DISGUSTED

Answer: Why don't you tell your husband plainly that you are perfectly willing to go fifty-fifty with him on the family celebrations, but that if you go to his people for Thanksgiving then you will expect him to go with you to your family for Christmas. There isn't any sense in your making all the sacrifices as he will have more respect for you if you stand up for your rights.

If your in-laws are just unreasonable people, they will understand your desire to be with your mother and father and sisters and brothers and old friends on some of the holidays. And if they are not just and reasonable they will make a doornail out of you unless you fight for your independence, so you had as well make your stand at once. The longer you wait the harder it will be for you to assert yourself.

Prying Inevitable

As for a remedy for a prying mother-in-law or mother there is none. It would take a major surgical operation to remove either one's bump of curiosity. Just remember that if your mother-in-law has given you a good husband you owe her a debt of gratitude. Also, remember that your happiness depends to a large extent upon your ability to get along with your mother-in-law in peace and that nothing you can do will endear you to your husband so much as not fighting with his mother. So it is a part of policy to overlook her interference as much as you can.

Dear Miss Dix: The cause of the increasing number of divorces is the unethical scheming of women for permanency and their desire to flaunt before the world a husband. Most marriages are the result of scheming girls and their mothers who go husband-hunting. The man, wholly unaware of it, falls into the trap set for him. The wedding ceremony is all the girl desires, as she knows that the criticism of society will do the work of holding the man to his part in this relationship. Then the man meets the girl whom he really loves, his true mate, but if he dares step out of his bonding society scheme: "You have broken your poor little wife's heart and deserted your children!" It is time the world stop kidding their courage enough to find justice to men.

Answer: I think you understand the intelligence and character of men and overate the cunning of women. Possibly there are men stupid enough and weak enough to be inveigled into marriage at their will, but such poor creatures are few and far between. Likewise, there are women who can weave a spell about a man that he is powerless to resist and while their victims are under the influence (yet not in the fetters of matrimony), but they are as scarce as honest men.

The theory that men shun marriage is also refuted by the fact that men do the divorcing are far agents in the matter. So the contention that the man is because they were forced into marriage by their wives does not hold water. There are many reasons why men philander, but it because they are vain, and they enjoy the thrill of love, because they are not motivated by nature, but not because they were poor, weak, hopeless creatures who didn't have the spirit to get away from a designing woman.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am going to adopt a child. Do you have any institution where the children that are given for adoption?

Answer: Every city has a Children's Finding Society that gives children for adoption to their parents.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1950
By King Features Syndicate.

I have insulted the so called Buchanan committee of the house of representatives. I have accused it of hounding law-abiding citizens in the interest of questionable private organizations. On the whole, I have done everything I can to show the Democratic members of this evil institution to some action which would enable me to show up vicious practices of congressional committees in dealing with their masters, the citizens of this United States. Not one of those Democrats has had the confidence to accept the challenge. They know I have got them over a barrel.

I acknowledge the right of congress to make citizens whether good or "bad," attend committee hearings and give information which the committee believe, or pretend to believe, they require for the constitutional work of congress,
the enactment of legislation.

But the political hounding of citizens, the theft of documents, the acceptance of stolen documents from crooks with axes to grind, the extortion of private information on irrelevant matters from citizens who do not know their rights, have gone too far. Congress, itself now has become disreputable.

Any "investigator" bearing credentials from any committee who ever comes to me demanding "all books and papers" on any subject, without specifying exactly what book and what papers, is going to get the surprise of his life.

First of all he will have to prove that he is neither a crook himself nor a member nor secret agent of some pro-Communist political outlet or some gossip dedicated to the propagation that Franklin D. Roosevelt was God Almighty. I will refuse any assurance that any private records which I produce for the legitimate guidance of congress will not be photographed for the use of any gutter-press of the radio or the disgraceful Washington
"press" corps, nor any blackmail-er.

If I am asked to give testimony in "executive" session, a term which implies secrecy, I will insist that everybody present be put under oath to keep all my testimony confidential. Otherwise I refuse to appear. I refuse to be a cheap shyster with an affection for Soviet Russia, may blab my "confidential" testimony to the claque of New Deal "columnists"
who to the shame of our free press, are widely represented as honest journalists.

And I will demand the anti-Communist oath of all concerned, even in open hearings. I say that because, long after the harm was done, we were allowed to learn, quietly, that the long, lingering,
honey investigation of "anti-labor"
activities by the La Follette committee, and the so-called investigation of the munitions industry by the Nye committee which smeared our most useful manufacturers of military war as "merchants of death," were Communist projects operated by the U. S. congress.

Those I were damnable crimes done by congress. The reason why they have not been dramatized in proportion to the evil which they wrought is that history rushes on.
The young citizens of today were children then. The older citizens of today are just older fools. They would not have believed the truth even if we had been able to tell it to them at the time.

Robert M. La Follette, Jr., of Wisconsin, let the Communist plant as his Chief Counsel John Abt, who has since been named in the spy hearings of the committee on un-American activities as a Communist, and Charles Kramer, who has been named as another Communist member of the same apparatus.

Years after the harm was done,
Whittaker Chambers testified that Abt became leader of the Communist underground group without our government. Under oath. Abt refused to say whether he had ever been a Communist on the ground that a truthful answer might in-criminate him.

Elizabeth Bentley, another reformed member of the traitorous apparatus, testified that Kramer was a Communist and that his real name was Krevitsky.

Leon Pressman, who has since admitted that he was a Communist and Alger Hiss, who has now gone to prison for perjury, were counsel for the Nye committee.
Senator Ney, be it granted, was an innocent victim of this vicious stratagem. But the citizen-victims of the inquiry are no better off for that. And the damage to men and firms in our first line of defense on the home front in producing munitions was not redeemed by the belated and side-ling revelation of the truth.

A pair of Communist plants, operating under La Follette's authority, created the durable fiction that the fatal Communist riot at Hempstead Street in south Chicago was a capitalist massacre organized by Tom Girdler. Girdler, to his great credit fought them all at the time. I hope I am not in-just in saying that I am quick to challenge the fraud in general and La Follette in special.

The documents of the La Follette committee were published at enormous expense, in addition to the cost of the proceedings. There were 10 volumes of 1,000 printed pages. La Follette later admitted that Communists had "infiltrated his staff."

the second round of the Azalea Open golf under way today. Last weekend he shot an opening 66 at Greensboro, fell off to a 78 the second day and recovered with a pair of pars for seventh money.

His work was cut out for him here as 15 players, all under par here in his heels, no more than four strokes away.

Fugol dropped two 25-foot birdie putts and another from 20 feet yesterday.

A stroke back of Fugol were Professionals Jim Farrier of San Francisco, and Mike Horna of West Hartford Conn., and Amateur Harvie Ward of Southern Pines, N. C.

Ferrier, had a pair of 24's for the par 72 Cape Fear Country club course, a 6,852-yarder. He never went over par, picking up two birdies on each nine.

Very much in contention with opening 69s were Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago; Argentina's Roberto De Vicenzo of Buenos Aires, and Tammy Bolt, Texas, who registers out of Durham, N. C.

They were only one stroke ahead
of John Palmer, Badin, N. C.; Volant, Jimmy Shute of Akron,
O.; Earl Stewart, Jr., Dallas, Tex.;
and Wilmington, N. C., Amateur L. C. Walsh, Jr., who burned up the front nine in 33.

Kicked For A Goal

Learning that the Penn State college soccer team was making a "goodwill" tour to Japan, two alumni enlisted from Istanbul:
"Could soccer team extend trip to include one or more games here?"

The cable elicited this remark from graduate manager Harold
"Ike" Gilbert: "Their next cable probably would demand seats on the 30-day line."

Rogers, Regan Starred at Rialto

A highly moving story of murder by a band of tough hoodlums with overtones of violent love and brute strength provides the background for "Storm Warning," the Warner Bros. drama coming to the Saenger Theatre on Sunday.

Starring Ginger Rogers, Ronald Regan, Doris Day and Steve Cochran, "Storm Warning," heralded in advance as one of the top films on the list of the year, tells of a girl who gets in the way of an underworld killing, of the brutish and lecherous inclinations of one of its members and of the girl's fears in attempting to aid an intrepid prosecutor trying to corral evidence against the killers.

Ginger Rogers, stopping off one night in a "friendly" little town to visit her newly married sister, played by Doris Day, accidentally witnesses a murder. Later she learns that her brother-in-law, Steve Cochran, was one of the killers. From that point it is the battle between her sense of justice and loyalty to her sister which restrains her from giving testimony.

Ronald Regan is the prosecutor who combats the town's fear of the hoodlums to make his case, while Steve Cochran plays the role of a man who makes love to his wife's sister and whose actions bring the violence of the story to a climax.

TV to Bring Whole New Shelf of Laws

By JACK DMS

(For James Marshall)

Washington, March 30 — (AP)—Top government attorneys say television is about to force the writing of a whole new shelf of laws. Just now, it's a wide open field. There is plenty of opinion, some of it loud, on what rights the TV camera has, or doesn't have, outside the studio. But to date, there is no federal law on the subject, and no major court has passed on any of the big questions involved.

The Kefauver senate crime investigation (telecasts) — smash hit of the TV year — brought the whole subject into sharp focus, without offering any final answers. So, as matters now stand, one man's opinion is as good as another's as to what rights in relation to TV and an individual under investigation, on trial, or simply called as a witness in this type of proceeding.

Among the many controversial questions raised by the Kefauver hearings, one stands out: Can a public hearing be too public? According to the lawyers, this one could be kicked around for years before the Supreme court acts in the final word. It is expected that it will someday do justice.

As everyone agrees that when the founding fathers provided in the earliest American law for "open hearings," they had in mind a room that could hold a couple of benches so that neighbors could come in and see that justice was done.

The idea was to avoid any form of the star chamber, whose secret sessions and arbitrary judgments had shocked 17th century England into abolishing that kind of process.

On the other hand, these first Americans would have outlawed any suggestion of a public hearing attended by a coast-to-coast audience. They didn't live in an age to conceive such a thing.

Now that it's possible, there is the widest difference of opinion among lawyers and laymen on whether the audience of millions for the senate committee's examination of underworld characters was or was not a legal one.

The committee itself, on Virgin ground, frequently moved cautiously.

Gambler Frank Costello forced the TV camera to limit its range to his well-kept hands, providing an unexpected but prime dramatic setting for his verbal testimony.

While this went on, news photographers, both still and motion picture, "shot" him from head to toe. The full-view films went out over the networks after the restricted live telecast was over.

Other witnesses flatly refused to testify under the brilliant lighting required for televising. Some objected to the whole setup of lights, cameras and recording devices. A Hamilton and sister Miss Mary Jo Hamilton.

Mrs. Clark White, Mrs. R. L. Blakely Jr., Mrs. L. L. Mitchell, Mrs. Lester Steed, moved to Texas for the day.

Mrs. R. L. Lowdermilk of Idaho, Oklahoma, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. B. Gordon and Mr. Gordon.

Mrs. A. W. Hudson, Miss Eloise Hudson, Mrs. Warren Cummings, Mrs. W. C. Reeves and Mrs. Ned Dancas were Monday visitors in Hot Springs.

IT'S WHAT WE'VE BEEN SAYING ALL ALONG—You don't hear "Git a horse!" as often these days as you used to. Motorists have just about written off Dobbin as a means of locomotion. But let seven inches of snow bog down those new-fangled machines, like it did in Memphis, Tenn., and right away somebody goes and gets a horse. That's what this smart pie peddler did when his gas buggy wouldn't go.

"OFF WE GO..."—Into the Air Force's wild blue yonder go "The Trojans," an acrobatic team signed up by Chicago recruiting office. Showing off their civilian qualifications, and getting their enlistment papers from Sgt. Roland C. Tranter, are (top to bottom): Peter Dopudja, 21; James Beifuss, 19, and Keith Anderson, 21.

Secretary Marshall Describes Global Picture as Worse Than November a Year Ago

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Secretary of Defense, Marshall has described the global picture as being on the whole more serious than last November, when the Western Allies had serious reverses in Korea.

The general hasn't interpreted his statement, but leaves it to us to figure out. That task is complicated somewhat by the simultaneous declaration of Mobilization Director Wilson that America's principal enemy should be "frightened" by the progress the United States has made in preparing for any attack. He says we now have "in sight" the military might to determine aggression.

Both these seemingly contradictory statements are correct, as I read them.

It's true there are no indications that another world war is imminent. This is due primarily to two reasons: One is that Russia has no present desire to tangle with the rapidly growing military might of the determined western nations. The other is that her cold war is calculated to cause the maximum economic and political damage to the western world without straining the Soviet union.

The essence of the Russian strategy is to bleed the other fellow all possible while saving your own hide.

So we find Moscow passing any actual gun play on to her satellites, like China, with an encouraging pat on the back. Russia thus conserves her own strength for the contingency of an ideological world war in which the Red blob would be pitted against the democracies for the big show-down.

This is a long-range strategy which might protract the cold war for years. That would mean turmoil and bloodshed among the backward peoples of Asia and other parts of the world. It would mean that the democracies must remain ever on the alert against espionage and treachery. It would mean keeping armed to the teeth at the expense of the taxpayer.

Not being a mind-reader, I don't know what was back of General Marshall's statement, but I suspect he may have been thinking along the lines indicated above. Perhaps his purpose was to keep us on our toes, for there would be tremendous danger if we became complacent and lowered our guard. Like our colonial forebears, we must till the soil with rifles close at hand.

But, you ask, is there no alternative to such a long-drawn-out struggle? Yes, there is an alternative which isn't being overlooked either by the Western powers or the Red bloc. When America in particular, and the democracies in general, have reached the peak of their military preparedness they will be in a position to demand a complete cessation of hostilities. But wouldn't that result in ma-

Tackett Favors Grass Roots Level

Little Rock, March 30 — (AP)—Rep. Boyd Tackett of Arkansas told a group of school people today that the administration of national legislation at the grass roots level is a good guarantee against any threat of socialism.

Tackett addressed the department of vocational education luncheon.

He said that legislation for the benefit of the people, especially the farmer, is all right so long as it is administered by the people for whom it was intended.

The 4th district congressman who recently spoke out against a proposed $10 million rural electrification plant near Ozark, said that REA is a good thing for the farmers as long as it is administered by the farmer and not taken to Washington and put under the thumb of the interior department.

"About the only time any one advocates turning something back to the people is during an election and afterwards, they forget all about it," he said.

He expressed belief that on certain people have taken over they will solve the public school financial situation in Arkansas.

Tackett cautioned against criticizing leaders for certain actions when you agree on other things they do. He said anybody can be critical and anybody can be a Monday quarterback.
